Creating human bond

On Raksha Bandhan, MM School students celebrated by tying Rakhis to community members, including local police, promoting the values of 'Humanity' and 'Unity in diversity.' This gesture aimed to strengthen bonds within the school and the local community, echoing Rabindranath Tagore's use of Raksha Bandhan to foster human connections during the partition of Bengal in 1905. It was a meaningful celebration that went beyond the traditional brother-sister relationship, emphasizing the essence of human unity and togetherness.
